My Family, My Joy

No matter what each new day brings, I pray my family finds joy, health, and happiness. No matter what may come our way, I pray my family faces each challenge with courage, wisdom, and the knowledge that love is more powerful than fear. No matter what conflicts we may run into today. I pray my family will always remember that love is all that matters in the end and that our bond is stronger than any obstacle we may face, together or alone. May we always find joy, hope, and blessings in the miracle that is our family.

Instead of feeling overwrought with demands to the point of being overwhelmed, feel the overflowing joy that comes from daily life in the midst of a hustling, bustling family. The two halves make one marvelous whole of God's balance.
