

Super-Santa-Man

My hero wore a hat / but those who may have tried to diminish Him in my eyes / called it a cap / But like the strong Man He is, was, and forever will be / He put Us on his back / Kept pushing forward teaching us to reject that.

My Hero was Husky / but those who resented the fact / a simple Man was becoming a great Father Husband and Man called Him fat / despised all that He placed Us and the community on His back / looked back at the devil and said it's gonna take a nation of millions to hold Me back.

They thought My Hero was weak and had no super powers Because He was charismatic and laid back / what they didn't know His power was "Each one teach one." / every elder was His Mother and Father / every woman and man was His Sister or Brother / as well as every boy and girl became his child / He took one step forward / looked back and grabbed a hand / becoming one of the most respected throughout the land.

In my eyes and from all I've read / that's the definition of greatness / so has that Seed been planted in my head.

Your hero may be Super Man, Santa Claus, or Bat Man / mines was, and is all the above / so you can call Him Super-Santa-Man / His real name is James Allen Moore / we call Him Pops and Daddy / some say Mr. James, James-Mo, Pig-Mo, Big Fella and Grandpa / my Hero is my Father, my Super-Santa-Man. We Love You Pops.
