Called Home Too Soon

We never knew that morning that your journey would be complete; that God would whisper softly and call you to His feet. We loved you in our living, we love you still today; and in the quiet moments your presence doesn't fade away. Our hearts were deeply broken, yet you did not go alone; for a part of us went with you the day God called you home. Your memory brings us comfort, your love still lights our way; and though we cannot see you, you walk with us each day. Our hearts hold every moment, every laugh and every tear; and though you're out of sight now, your spirit lingers near. One day we'll walk together, where joy will never end; until God calls us homeward, and we reunite again.

My Wife, Mildred

My love, today I stand with a heart heavier than words can carry. Mildred, you were my comfort, my joy, and my steady place. Your smile lifted me through storms I never thought I could face. Your kindness shaped the man I am and will always be. Losing you has broken me in ways I cannot fully speak. Yet your love still surrounds me like a quiet, guiding light. I feel you in every memory that refuses to fade. I carry you in every step I take forward. One day, God will lead me to where you now rest in peace. Until then, Mildred, I will honor you with the love you left in my heart.

Love Jimmy
