"I shall pass this way but once; any good that I can do or any kindness I can show to any human being; let me do it now. Let me not defer nor neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again."

The Life & Legacy of Andrea Nicole Jackson

Accepting the will of God, it is publicly shared the passing of Andrea Nicole Jackson, who entered eternity left this world peacefully on February 18, 2025, at the Youngstown campus of Mercy Health Medical Center. Born on July 20, 1981, to the union of Jimmie and Nadine Jackson, in Youngstown, Ohio,

Andrea attended Woodrow Wilson High School and ultimately became an example of resilience, perseverance and determination for her children and others as she successfully obtained her high school graduate equivalency degree. Andrea had a flair for life that was as colorful as her signature style. A true fashionista, she embraced her vibrant energy and positive vibes, always ready to share an uplifting word or a contagious laugh. Andrea found comfort in the Lord and her faith which was nurtured at Evangel Assembly of God and Ebenezer COGIC

Cooking was a passion she inherited from her mother—her fried chicken and homemade cheesecake were nothing short of legendary. In addition to her culinary talents, Andrea was a tech whiz, skilled with computers, and an avid fan of classic and current R&B—always ready to sing along to Brandi, Monica, Mary J. Blige or Yolanda Adams. Though she had an affinity for soulful tunes, she could never resist the rhythmic beats of rap. She loved creating and sharing crafts, especially her perchance for making scented candles. She loved and embraced her competitive spirit in family badminton games, which was one of the events in the family's Barcelona Games, their version of the Olympics, complete with laughter & love. Her admiration and support of her beloved Dallas Cowboys Football team was “not for play play!”

A loving mother to her children Hailei Jackson, Cayla Jackson, Taylor Jackson, James Jackson, Andrea's greatest joy came from her children and her beloved grandsons Jeremiah, Cashton, Kiro, and Kaysin. These legacy bearers were her heart, and she poured every ounce of her vibrant spirit into nurturing and uplifting them. She is cherished by her cherished siblings Christopher (Tameika) Thomas, Anthony Thomas, James (Marcella) Jackson, Michael Jackson and Antoinette Jackson, along with a score of family and friends who loved her dearly.

As she crossed the celestial sands, she was reunited with her beloved mother Nadine Jackson and joined the great cloud of witnesses, among them her grandparents Charles Bunn, Loretta Bates Bunn Carter, Alonzo Carter and Ocie Edmonds; along with great grandmother-nationally recognized civil rights leader Daisy Bates, all awaiting the ultimate heavenly family reunion, Andrea now ascends to higher heights with grace and love.
